The BC Flagging Association has recently become the latest trend among traffic control people.

Flag people from all over the province and across Canada are joining in an effort to combat speeders, aggressive drivers and drivers who don't pay attention while driving through construction zones. The BC Flagging Association founded by BC Road Safe's own, Diane Herback & Tammy Sampson have teamed up with local RCMP law enforcement, Commercial Vehicle Inspectors and The Minister of Transportation to make tougher laws when it comes to those who don't comply with the regulations.

Roadway workers, truck drivers and taxi cab companies are all signing up as members to support this effort. Soon you will see the Flagging Association at schools educating our provinces young drivers and at roadway/road building trade shows spreading the word of more harsh consequences. The result of a driver who doesn't pay attention often ends in a tragic death.
